Supporting Health Professions Students: Key Questions Answered

✓ Who can apply for Ascent health professions loans?

Graduate students enrolled at least half-time in eligible nursing, pharmacy, and allied health programs (e.g., MSN, DNP, PharmD, PA, and other allied health graduate programs).

✓ What additional support do borrowers receive?

Professional training, career readiness tools, and financial wellness resources designed to support career advancement and long-term financial planning.

✓ How much can health professions graduate students borrow?

Up to $200,000 annually / $400,000 aggregate, aligned to the full cost structure of nursing, pharmacy, and allied health programs.

✓ Do students need a cosigner?

No. Both cosigned and non-cosigned credit-based options are available.

- Our underwriting considers factors beyond traditional credit criteria, such as future earning potential and program information.¹
- Students with a cosigner can apply for cosigner release after 12 months of on-time payments.³
- A Parent Student Loan option is also available for graduate funding.
